REACH Act Symposium

The REACH Act Symposium is a one-day workshop and discussion forum designed to foster best practices for teaching our nation's founding documents.*

Intended for faculty, graduate students, and staff at public institutions of higher education throughout South Carolina. Sponsored by the USC College of Arts and Sciences and Humanities Collaborative, and the Clemson University College of Arts and Humanities and the Humanities Hub.

Lunch will be provided and participants requiring transportation will receive a $75 Amazon gift card to off-set travel expenses.

The 2021 SC REACH Act requires all university students to receive instruction in America's founding documents.*

Topics to be covered include:

- Increasing student engagement
- Teaching the Constitution as a living document
- Adopting unique disciplinary perspectives on America's founding
- Creative organizational approaches for teaching the founding documents
