

Spring Semester in Belgrade, Serbia

Overview

The spring semester in Belgrade allows students to gain a truly international perspective on world politics and international relations while studying and living in a cosmopolitan European capital city. The program includes several excursions within Serbia and the Balkan region, including Kosovo, Bosnia & Herzegovina, and Montenegro in which students interact with local students, officials in the Serbian government and representatives of local non-governmental organizations. Satisfy most of your global politics or political science minor requirements or many of your political science major requirements while spending a semester abroad gaining a true international perspective. All courses are taught in English by top Belgrade University professors.
